

relics

by angela marsh

you spoke
your words are whispers stealing around
the air
and my breath
soft
cool
filling the space
i feel mute
and your lips
move slowly
trembling
when you pronounce
"r"
a shadow begins to fall
i think the sun is rising finally
so i cry
don't want the whispers to stop we're only allowed to do this in the dark